REAR-ADMIRAL SAYS SECOND FRONT HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED

Navy Chief of Ordnance States That U. S. Now Holds Balance of Power

WESTERN PACIFIC AREA

American Forces Will Have To Keep Fighting to Hold Solomon Islands

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—America has established "a real second front" against the Japanese in the Southwest Pacific, Rear Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Navy Chief of Ordnance, said today, and emphasized that the United States now holds the balance of naval and military striking power in the western Pacific area.

His statements were made to reporters at a press conference called by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox following the Admiral's return from a 26,000-mile tour of U. S. Pacific outposts.

Blandy was asked whether he believed that American forces which seized the Solomon Islands from the Japs could hold their gains against anything the Nipponese might be able to throw against them.

"I don't think we can do it by merely holding," Blandy answered. "We have to keep pushing. The best defense is offense."

Blandy stated that we have "a real second front" established against the Japanese in the Southwest Pacific.

He warned, however, that Americans in the Pacific are fighting against "a determined and fanatical enemy who neither expects quarter nor gives it and keeps on fighting when fighting should be finished."

He expressed satisfaction with the equipment being used by American forces in the Pacific, especially latest anti-aircraft guns which are being placed on American vessels.

SENATOR WATKINS, SCHUYLKILL COUNTY, TELLS REPUBLICANS OF BUCKS COUNTY TO ELECT MARTIN GOVERNOR OF PENNA.

By Staff Reporter

BUCKINGHAM, Sept. 15.—The campaign of General Edward Martin, State GOP gubernatorial standard bearer, was considerably accelerated in Bucks county last evening when State Senator G. Harold Watkins, Schuylkill county's well known Republican leader, urged an overflowing audience in the Loyal Republican Club of Bucks county at their headquarters here to "put General Martin in the Governor's chair at Harrisburg in November, because he is a leader and a warrior, and because he stands for honest, efficient, economical government."

In addition to Senator Watkins' forceful and dramatic appeal the Loyal Republicans held a short but happy ceremony in which the mortgage on their club house was burned.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANEY BY REPORTERS

Keller's Church Community Flower Club held its meeting last week with a good attendance.

The topic, "Grow Among Vegetables," was discussed by Mrs. Freeman Johnson, and "What to plant and the Way I Plant It" was the subject of a reading by Eleanor Frei. Mrs. Albert E. Macklin commented upon the subject, "Perennial Division and Dress Up Odd Corners," following which a reading, "All Can Be Yours," was given by Mrs. Harry Wambold. "Fall sown annuals and Fire Cracker Holly," was read by Mrs. E. Z. Simmons. An exhibit of the club's specimens of the year was held. Members served as judges.

Prizes were awarded as follows: First, Eleanor Frei, 13 points, and second, Mrs. E. Z. Simmons.

The next meeting will be held on October 13th at the home of Mrs. William Moyer, Kellers Church.

One of the questions taken into consideration at the well attended meeting of the Northampton Farmers' Club entertained on Thursday by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Leedom and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Yost at the home of the former in Ivyland was "Will the farmer be able to maintain production for the duration?" This question was discussed by Furman A. Edwards and Joseph W. Halliwell.

In the opinion of Mr. Edwards the shortage of farm labor and the inability to get many farming implements has a marked effect upon production on the farms. The shortage of labor, said Mr. Edwards, will mean the farmers will have to make many sacrifices and much help from the farm family will be required.

Admitting also that farmers are experiencing much difficulty in getting help, Mr. Halliwell said the farmers have always come through, and he is of the opinion they will again during the present war.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Samuel Pernar, and the opening features were singing and a prayer by Rev. Alvin A. Hook.

The question assigned Mrs. Wilmer Weir was "Should we dry fruits and vegetables and how during the duration?" Giving a reply in the affirmative, Mrs. Weir listed a number of methods for the drying of corn and apples. Several other women also discussed the question.

Harris Holmes, club president; Mrs. Ralph Dunn, president of the ladies' auxiliary of the club; Edward B. Watson, Bucks county Register of Wills; and former U. S. Senator Joseph R. Grundy took part in the ceremony, with Mr. Grundy touching a match to the document. The Loyal Republican club was organized seven years ago.

Senator Watkins told the audience that if we are willing to sacrifice 10 million boys to preserve our way of life on foreign soil we should have enough gumption and backbone to get out and vote in November.

"The election of a governor in Pennsylvania is the election of the second most powerful man in the United States," the Senator declared. "And during these trying times we must elect a man like General Martin so that our Commonwealth can contribute the most in our all-out effort for victory. General Martin can lead us in that path. He can show us the path of sacrifice."

"General Martin is not a professional soldier. He is a civilian who has answered the call of his country in time of war. He is familiar with our State government, having held office before."

"Mr. Ross, the Democratic candidate for governor, has promised a return of the Earle system if he is elected. But just remember, Mr. Earle left an 80 million dollar deficit when he left office. And remember further, that Mr. James, our present Governor, when he leaves office will leave an estimated 80 million dollar surplus. Therefore, if for no other reason, you must get out in November and elect General Martin because he promises the same efficient type of government as that conducted by Governor James."

The speaker read from the 29-point Republican platform which promises support of President Roosevelt in the war effort, provide freedom of the individual and maintain the sovereignty of the state.

"To win this war we'll have to make tremendous sacrifices and make them quickly," Senator Watkins declared.

"We'll have to give up our standard of living; we'll have to eat rice and soy beans; we'll have to give up our fortunes to maintain the American way of life of which we are so proud. A democracy lives on sacrifices, but during the last ten years we have forgotten how to sacrifice."

"The Japanese have always sacrificed. Their diet for years has been rice and soy beans. And now they are a major and dangerous power. Their people number 60 millions. But we in America have looked down on them, but still we have sold them our scrap iron, our steel and our oil for years. And now we must sacrifice to win this war. The price we will be asked to pay will be high."

"Our burdens will be innumerable. But we can save the burden of State and local taxes by electing General Martin. That will make it a little easier to meet the burden of increased Federal taxes that we must pay to win this war. The war will be won faster if we in Pennsylvania have a man who is a real leader and a warrior... a man like General Martin. We are extremely fortunate to have such a man in the Keystone State."

Taking his audience back to the year 1860, when the Union was divided in a great Civil War, Senator Watkins declared, "things were dark in America in 1860. The American way of life was at stake then. And today it is at stake again. And again we must rally as Lincoln rallied then."

In concluding his talk Watkins quoted from Lincoln who in the dark days of the Civil War said, "We, this present generation, shall nobly save, or meanly lose, this last best hope of earth."

TERMS 'ORDINARY' FIRE GASES JUST AS DEADLY AS POISON GAS OF ENEMIES

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of five stories on fire protection and prevention of especial interest at this time when the greatest care must be taken to guard against fires that may impede war production.—INS)

By Delbert Johnson
Safety Research Institute
Written Especially for International News Service

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(INS)—In fear of the dread cry of "Poison Gas!" thousands of men and women have enrolled in the OGD decontamination services. Yet the obvious fact that hundreds of people are killed every year by "ordinary" fire gases scarcely ripples the surface of civilian consciousness.

But the fact remains that gases produced in everyday fires are just as deadly as anything yet devised by enemy scientists.

Burning paper, for instance, gives off carbon monoxide, methane, and other, less dangerous, gases. The rubber insulation on electric wires gives off hydrogen sulphide and sulphur dioxide. Burning silk and wool give off hydrocyanic acid. All these gases are deadly.

In addition, smoke and gases displace oxygen from the air, and thus lower the oxygen content, sometimes below the point where consciousness or even life can be sustained.

Two familiar settings for fire gas poisoning are reported almost daily. In one case, people trying to escape from a fire are overcome by smoke. In the other, a person who falls asleep while smoking is asphyxiated when his bed catches on fire.

Carbon monoxide is one of the deadliest of fire gases. It gives no warning signs. It is invisible, odorless and tasteless. Its action is so sudden that symptomatic warnings may come too late to give the victims time to save himself. It is formed in almost every kind of fire. As is well known, a two per cent concentration in the air will knock a person out almost instantly, and, unless he is immediately carried to the open air, death will result within four minutes.

Hydrocyanic acid and hydrogen sulphide are even more lethal—the former is now used in several states to Fire Companies From Bristol Summoned to Property of A. Ceranko, Tyburn Rd.

LOSS PLACED AT $1500

Fire companies from Bristol and vicinity this morning were summoned to the farm of Andrew Ceranko, Tyburn Road, Falls Township. It was about 2.45 when the call was received by the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department which at once dispatched two pieces of apparatus and a crew of men.

The garage, about 15 feet from the house, was badly damaged. It was built of concrete block but there was considerable goods and some paint, according to the firemen, stored in the building.

The firemen did good work in that they prevented the spread of the flames to the house.

The damage is estimated at $1500. Volunteer firemen from Bristol, Edgely and Fallsington also responded to the call.

Error Made in Reporting News of Eddington Crash

The Courier regrets an error made yesterday in the publication of the details of an accident which occurred Sunday night at Virginia and Bowman avenues, Eddington.

The article stated that a truck operated by Norman H. Betge, 1428 Knorr street, Philadelphia, crashed into the parked car of Stanley Jester, and that Betge had been arrested and charged with operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated and held for court.

In some manner the names of the parties concerned became transposed. The article should have stated that the truck was operated by Stanley Jester and that Jester was pronounced intoxicated and held for court for operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

VETERAN OF FIRST WORLD WAR LEAVES FOR ARMY TODAY

Harry Doyle, Tullytown, Had 23 Months of Service In World War I

IS DRAFTED AGAIN

Big Crowd at Station to See The Men Leave For Training

Relatives and friends in large numbers gathered to see those who had been inducted into the Army leave here this morning. The group assembled at the post office building where the men first reported to the Local Selective Service Board. Some of those who were taken to the post office on the apparatus of the fire companies of which they are members.

The list of names of those inducted was previously published. Included in the list was Harry Doyle, Tullytown, a veteran of World War I. Doyle was drafted and saw service overseas. Doyle was gassed and shell-shocked in World War I. He left today with the group reporting for the present global war. Doyle was drafted February 28, 1918 at Caldwell, N. J., and was honorably discharged May 28, 1919, due to demobilization. His discharge shows he was in the battles of St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne and the Puyennele Sector.

The station platform was crowded with relatives and friends gathered to see the men leave. Due to the large number crowded upon the platform the men were delayed in getting aboard the train. The Local Selective Service Board members, again calls the attention of the public to the danger of being upon the platform when the men are leaving. There is great danger of accident and the train is delayed and thus the regular passengers are also delayed.

Women of the "36 For Victory" were again on hand and gave the men cigarettes and chewing gum.

Another group of men are being examined today by local physicians. Within the next few days this group will leave for further physical examination and induction.

COUNCIL REJECTS AGREEMENT TO PAY HIGHWAY DAMAGES

State Offers Resolution Which Would Have Obligated Boro To Pay $8,000 to $10,000

TO FORCE PAVING

Adopt Resolution Authorizing Paving, Grading, Curbing, Guttering of 2 Properties

Borough Council, last night, rejected a resolution offered by the Pennsylvania State Highway Department, asking the Borough to assume liability for property damages resulting from the proposed construction of a highway on Route 150-2A from station 35745 to station 406137. If Council had adopted the resolution the borough may have been obligated to pay between $8,000 and $10,000 damages for property damaged along the proposed route. The route in question leads from Otter Creek into Bath street and Silver Lake, and touches Beaver Dam Road near the Tan Art Company property.

Council adopted a resolution authorizing the Borough to proceed with the grading, paving, curbing and guttering of the sidewalk in front of the properties of James W. Robertson and the David Mulholland Estate, Farragut avenue and Jackson street. The owners are to be given 30 days' notice, and if they do not proceed with the work, then the borough is to have the work done and bill the owners. If the bill is not paid within 20 days then the costs are to be assessed against the properties.

The traffic light question was again discussed and Council authorized the removal of the traffic light from Pond and Dorance street to Radcliffe street and Jefferson avenue. Several councilmen objected to the removal of the light, but as no new light can be purchased now, it was finally agreed to make the removal.

The State Highway Department agreed to grant a temporary permit for the overhead light at Jefferson avenue and Radcliffe street for a period of 90 days, and if the trial proves satisfactory then the borough agrees to place pedestal lights at that intersection.

Councilman Myers, third ward, again called to the attention of Council the bad traffic condition at Otter, Mill and Bath streets. No action was taken. The State made a survey and recommended the painting of traffic lines.

Report of Tax Collector Louis B. Gorton was received and ordered filed. Application for a sign permit in front of Toranzo's garage, Otter street, was referred to street and highway committee with power to act.

Councilman Clark called to the attention of Council the condition of the fence at the "dead-end" of Chestnut street. It was referred to public property committee with power to act.

In the absence of President of Council Dr. J. Fred Wagner, the meeting was called to order by Burgess Clifford L. Anderson, and William H. Pearson was chosen as president pro tem.

Police reported making 34 arrests during the month of August. Four were held for court, three discharged, 29 fined, seven sent to the county jail. The radio car answered 115 calls. Two incandescent lights and one are light were reported out, two doors found open, and 25 lodgers sheltered. Ten were fined for all-night parking and two discharged.

Councilmen absent were Wagner, Warner, Vandegrift, Mitchener, Mulligan, Galzerano and Conklin.

One Man's Opinion By Walter Kiernan (I. N. S. Staff Writer)

It is no wonder that women are making a stronger bid for political power this year than ever before.

Women have been increasing their hold on the nation since its founding and today 100 per cent of the mothers of the United States are women.

And they make better mothers than their fathers did.

Women buy 100 per cent of the open-toed shoes and 97 per cent of the finger waves. They are the largest consumers of motion pictures and chicken chow mein.

Why shouldn't they be senators and governors and congressmen? They support the tea room fortune telling industry and were 10 years ahead of the men in the knack of opening tin cans.

Women constitute 50 per cent of the married persons of this country and buy all the red leather bags and three foot wide hats.

They own banks, railroads and steamship lines either direct or by proxy and have gotten to the top by sheer brain power and a little sheer silk.

Thought for the day? Madam President Gypsy Rose Lee.

INCOME AND SAVINGS

Only nine months have elapsed since the country became actively engaged in the war, but already there has been a noticeable shift in the economic habits of the people. A nationwide survey reveals that almost immediately after Pearl Harbor reductions in civilian purchasing were noted, and increased savings, included War bond and stamp purchases, began.

More overtime pay, generally higher wages, new jobs for city workers and good prices for farm crops that went to the market in the first half of 1942 gave many people higher incomes than in the preceding year. Thus in 1941 families had an average income of $1,430 a year, but by the first quarter of this year the rate had risen to $1,540.

As the national income spirals upward, the average wage will also advance. Since nearly six-sevenths of the nation's consumer units are composed of families of two or more persons, and since half of this group still is below the reach of the income tax levy, it is obvious that unless savings and bond purchases in this group keep in step, inflation will be stimulated. For despite the curtailment of civilian consumer goods, there are still things to be bought. And an excess of money is bound to force the prices for those articles up and up.

But this is not the only danger. This is a time of easy money, but it will not be so indefinitely. The people have the assurance that the large group still unaffected by income taxes is laying aside a portion of its increased income as a cushion against post-war economic recession. If it were otherwise, the coming of peace would find the nation plagued not only by the unavoidable problems of a postwar period but also by the added, and avoidable, burden of large groups in dire economic distress.

Another theory that has been exploded, to the consternation of the planners, is that the price of hogs has no effect upon the price of pork chops.

Due to the threatened shortage of fuel along the eastern coast, citizens may be all set for a fireside that some evening next winter and discover that they have no firesides.

That plastic office safe should at least prove a surprise to an unsuspecting burglar.

Cheese output in the United States is up 46 per cent compared to last year, not including the variety that comes over the radio.

STOKER BECOMES M. P.

LONDON—(INS)—A stoker who was about to leave Britain in a convoy was stopped by the message that he has become this country's first Member of Parliament from the lower deck. He is William J. Edwards of Wapping, a London suburb, who was elected, unopposed, in the latest London by-election.

SOLDIERS' SALVAGE DRIVE

CHANUTE FIELD, Ill. — (INS) — Chanut men proved they could get "in the scrap" in more ways than one as partial results of the intensified salvage campaign came to light.

During a two-week period, some 450 pounds of toothpaste tubes and 300 pounds of razor blades have been collected as personal "gifts for Hitler." In a month and a half the field salvage has collected a pile of aluminum 100 feet in diameter and 10 feet high.

Loses License And Pays Costs and Fine

Nase pleaded guilty before Judge Hiram H. Keller yesterday. He was given a break by the court when he informed Judge Keller that he expected to be in the service within two months. For that reason the court did not place Nase on probation.

An officer of the Quakertown substation of Motor Police, testified that he was on patrol on the night of Feb. 15 when he noticed Nase driving a car. He stated that Nase, when he saw the police car, jumped out of the driver's seat into the back seat.

"Cars are my hobby and I just could not keep away from driving one," Nase told Judge Keller.

"Well, you got off easy the first time when a friend was killed in your car," the court commented. "Your license was suspended for only six months and you didn't take it very seriously, or you would not have driven a car before your suspension period had expired."

Nase tried to enlist in the Marine Corps but was turned down on a technicality. He expects to be called into the service shortly by his draft board.

A fine of $100 and costs was imposed on Jesse H. Morgan, 90 Cottage street, Doylestown, yesterday when a plea of driving while drunk was entered by the defendant before Judge Keller. Morgan's good reputation came in handy when the court commented that he had known Morgan and the fact that he had never been in trouble before. Morgan was arrested on June 29, this year in Doylestown by an officer of the local sub-station of Motor Police. The defendant has a garage at Furlong.

Walter Pietrowsky, 26, Melvin avenue, Morrisville, who was implicated back in 1936 in three Bucks county hold-ups, and who served five years and three months in prison at Rahway, N. J., pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Calvin S. Boyer.

The defendant had a part in the robbery of a man and woman in an automobile parked in Morrisville, robbery of an insurance salesman in Morrisville, and one other offense.

Judge Boyer, commenting on this case, said: "This is an extremely mild sentence you are getting. We usually give from 3 to 20 years for personal robberies by gun. If you had come to Bucks county first, you would have gotten a minimum of five years. The protection of the public must be considered ahead of criminals. If a man can reform after serving time like you have, well and good."

Charles Bowyer, 328 Cleveland St., Bristol, charged with assault and battery on his wife, Irene, pleaded guilty before Judge Keller. Sentence was suspended and the defendant placed on probation for one year.

Otto Grupp, Jr., Bristol, realtor, was appointed foreman of the Grand Jury for the September term of Criminal Court. The Grand Jury was charged by President Judge Hiram H. Keller.

Among the missing were two who are now in the Army. They are James H. Brehant, Langhorne R. D. 1, and J. Hibbs Buckman, Jr., Langhorne, son of a member of the Bucks County Bar Association. Several farmer-members of the jury were excused because of the serious farm help shortage. None were missing because of gasoline and tire rationing.

Elmore James, Negro, of near Somerton, was before Judge Boyer on a surety of the peace charge brought against him by his father-in-law, C. W. Johnson, of Langhorne.

Johnson testified that James threatened him with a knife on July 12, and that he is afraid of his son-in-law because he once "shot at a man" and was punished with a 10-year sentence.

James admitted he served five years of a 10-year sentence in Florida for shooting a girl, and that he did "scratch" a fellow with a knife one time.

The defendant makes $24 cents an hour as a carpenter's helper in Philadelphia. His draft card has him as "B. H."

Judge Boyer sentenced James to serve bond in sum of $1,000 to keep the peace especially toward his father-in-law.

The Court told James that if he enlists in the Army he may release him or if he goes back to Florida he can be released on his own recognizance.

Victor Bartella, Phila., pleaded guilty before Judge Boyer to a charge of burglary that was committed at the Doylestown freight station about seven years ago. The defendant was recently discharged from the Eastern Penitentiary after serving a minimum sentence on a similar charge.

The penitentiary officials gave the county court an excellent report as to Bartella's behavior in the "Pen."

Judge Boyer sentenced Bartella to serve 2 months to 2 years in the Bucks County Prison from the date of his commitment. After his release from prison here, Bartella will be out on parole under the jurisdiction of the State Parole Board.

Chloe looked at the poet with a light like tears in her eyes.

"Where has that book been?" she said.

"Everywhere," he answered. He looked pale and spent. Meeting her eyes, she straightened a little. The light in them was like wine. "Some of them have been published," he added. "In the Saturday Review, and in the magazines of protest. Nobody wants poetry."

"But they need it," answered Chloe of the crusading heart. "Give me a list of the places it's been. I'll take it around."

"So you've found something to do with me," he said. "Do you think I'd have you tramping with me the way I used to tramp?"

"I'm tramping anyhow. Let me, Hugh."

She took the book, turning its pages.

"That's not my name, you know." "Yes, I know. I don't care what your name is."

"Do you mean that, Chloe?" "Of course. What difference does it make?"

He said defensively, "It's a good name. There's been a Byron Torche in every generation for I've forgotten how many years. 'De Byron,' it used to be in France, before the Edict of Nantes. I'm the only black sheep among them."

"You're not a sheep of any kind," said Chloe.

She saw that he wanted to talk, tired as he was, to tell her about himself, and she closed his book, put it on the couch on her other side, for she meant to keep it, to take it about with her, no matter what he said.

"Byron Torche is a better name for a poet than Hugh Richards," she told him. "I wish you'd use it."

"The family asked me not to. They don't like my philosophy."

She smiled. "Charleston wouldn't, and neither would Whalla. Still, it's great poetry, and the name happens to be yours."

"It's theirs, too, and they can have it. Richards was my grandmother's name. She told me to take that if I wanted it."

"And where did you get the Hugh?"

"Nowhere. I wish you'd go on calling me that. I like the way you say it."

per cent in the air is said to be fatal in six to eight minutes, and one excited breath of a higher concentration may produce death on the spot.

Nitrous fumes produced when pyroxilin materials burn, likewise, are highly toxic. In the ill-fated Cleveland Clinic disaster in 1929, 125 persons were killed by nitrous fumes from burning films.

In recognition of these many fire gas dangers, fire experts have repeatedly warned emergency fire-fighters to be wary of fighting fires in confined places and to stay on their feet when combatting a blaze. Most people mistakenly believe that one should crawl up on a fire Indian-fashion; but this is dangerous, since many deadly gases are heavier than air, and sink to the floor. After the fire is out, the place should be thoroughly aired.

Persons who have been overcome by smoke and gases usually can be revived by being taken into the open air and allowed to lie prone. In more serious cases, oxygen should be administered by a professional. Medical authorities warn, however, that in no case should the victim be given alcoholic stimulants, except by a doctor; and no attempt should be made to revive him with dousings of cold water, slapping or enforced walking.

GRAND THEATRE

Marking Orson Welles' second screen venture, "The Magnificent Ambersons" presents a vivid panorama of some 25 years in the life of an Indian town, with such noted players as Joseph Cotten, Dolores Costello, Tim Holt, Anne Baxter and Agnes Moorehead in its principal roles.

The film adheres closely to Booth Tarkington's Pulitzer Prize novel in its story of the rise of one family and the fall of another, with dramatic complications stemming largely from the spoiling of an only son, and his subsequent wrecking of his mother's life.

BRISTOL THEATRE

Product of a great story, a great cast and a great producer-director, Cecil B. DeMille's "Reap the Wild Wind," spectacular sea saga in technicolor, is at the Bristol Theatre. For us moviegoers this is exciting news.

Preview critics have already hailed "Reap the Wild Wind" as the best of the mighty DeMille films, a spectacular jewel to fit into the great showman's crown of screen achievements. For DeMille it climaxes 30 years of picture-making, and represents the 30th anniversary celebration offering of Paramount Pictures itself.

RITZ THEATRE

Delightful comedy without a shadow of remorse is on the screen at the Ritz Theatre where Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor co-star in "Her Cardboard Lover."

This smart, amusing story from the play by Jacques Deval was directed by George Cukor, whose craftsmanship sparkles through dialogue and action.

VALUE OF EVENTS BOOSTED AT COMING MEET AT BELMONT

Jockey Club Gold Cup is Expected to Prove Biggest Attraction

WILL START SEPT. 21ST

Some of The Outstanding Steeds in the Country Are Expected to Compete

By Lou Bindman
(U. S. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(INS)—A revised program of stake values at Belmont Park this fall finds a number of the coveted events increased in value while one comes in for a drastic reduction. The latter case strikes a new note in this day of high financial levels.

Last year it was the New York Handicap, a fledgling among the historic roster of Belmont prizes, that had the greatest money lure. Now its value is pared a full 50 per cent from its original height of $50,000 added money to $25,000. But to balance that in large measure, the Westchester Racing Association has upped the Jockey Club Gold Cup from $10,000 added to $25,000, ranking that long, two-mile engagement along with the two and a quarter mile New York Handicap as the two top prizes of the meeting.

The Jockey Club Gold Cup, more historically mellowed, is expected to actually prove the biggest attraction of the fall meeting, which gets under way September 21st and winds up on October 10th. Some of the outstanding steeds in the country, of the three-year-old and upward brigade, will be found on the nomination list. The Cup race comes up for decision on October 2nd, and is followed a week later by the New York Handicap.

While the latter event will also be graced by some of the greatest names in racing, so far as nominations are concerned, it is highly uncertain to judge what starters in the gruelling two-mile Cup will be strained a week later over the even longer two and a quarter miles of the New York Cup. The talent may be split between them. Some horsemen think the earlier scheduled Cup will have the better starting field, since owners and trainers might use that race also as a vehicle to determine the fitness and readiness of their steeds for the later New York Cup. The latter contest is also for three-year-olds and upward.

In addition to the Jockey Club Gold Cup, other races booster in worth are the Lawrence Realization Stakes, increased from $7,500 up to $10,000 added money; the Fall Highweight Handicap, hiked from $5,000 to $7,500 added; the Vosburgh Handicap, boosted from $5,000 to $7,500 added, and the Matron Stakes, enriched from $5,000 to $7,500 added.

The list of stakes, dates and conditions follows:

Monday, September 21, Fall Highweight Handicap, $7,500 added, all ages, six furlongs Widener Course.
Tuesday, Sept. 22, Jerome Handicap, $7,500 added, three-year-olds, one mile.
Wednesday, Sept. 23, Broad Hollow Steeplechase Handicap, $3,000 added, three-year-olds and upward, about two miles.

Saturday, Sept. 26, Manhattan Handicap, $10,000 added, three-year-olds and upward, one mile and a half.
Saturday, Sept. 26, Matron Stakes, $7,500 added, two-year-old fillies, six furlongs Widener Course.

Tuesday, Sept. 29, Lawrence Realization, $10,000 added, three-year-olds, one mile and five furlongs.
Wednesday, Sept. 30, Brook Steeplechase Handicap, $5,000 added, four-year-olds and upward, about two miles and a half.

Thursday, Oct. 1, Vosburgh Handicap, $7,500 added, all ages, 7 furlongs.
Saturday, Oct. 3, Jockey Club Gold Cup, $25,000 added, three-year-olds and upward, two miles.

Tuesday, Oct. 6, Ladies Handicap, $15,000 added, fillies and mares, three-year-olds and upward, one mile and a half.

Wednesday, Oct. 7, Grand National Steeplechase Handicap, $15,000 added, four-year-olds and upward, about three miles.

Saturday, Oct. 10, New York Handicap, $25,000 added, three-year-olds and upward, two miles and a quarter.

Pennsylvania's population of 220 persons per square mile represents a density close to that of Poland and greater than that of France, or of Norway, Sweden and Denmark. More people live in small villages and towns in Pennsylvania than in any other American state.

Yet Pennsylvania still contains many million acres of open land. Its 13,000,000 acres of forests, of which nearly 2,800,000 acres are on State or National public lands, every year, and particularly this year, attract hundreds of thousands of outdoor lovers who find that in Pennsylvania, the industrial heart of our Nation, all the pleasures of field and forest are available to whoever goes out to seek for them.

One very dramatic illustration of the extent of open land in our Commonwealth is pointed out by the State Planning Board of the Department of Commerce. Starting out in West Shenango Township in Crawford County at the Ohio border line, a man might walk due east across the entire Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and finally strike the Delaware River at Pike County on the New Jersey border.

Line without encountering in this walk a single incorporated community.

Along the line of this walk he would pass through some of Pennsylvania's most beautiful forest land, through the orchards of Crawford County, among the oil wells of Venango, through the deep forests of Forest, Elk, Cameron, Potter, Tioga, Sullivan and Wyoming, through some of the wilder areas in the north of Lackawanna County and finally emerge among the lakes of Wayne and the forest land in the north of Pike.

Perhaps no such walk will ever be taken as it would be very difficult to steer an east-west compass course across this great Commonwealth, but that such an unbroken stretch exists in a State which has been settled for nearly 200 years is a very remarkable circumstance.

That, however, does not tell the whole story of Pennsylvania's tremendous expanse of open land. If a man should set out in Antrim Township in Franklin County and walk due north over the ridges and valleys of Juniata and Mifflin, across Center County, Clinton and into the wild lands of Potter, he would pass from the Maryland State border line to the New York border without encountering a single organized city, borough, or town.

Most remarkable of all, if a line is drawn to Mills Creek Township in Erie County at the base of Presque Isle peninsula on the shores of Lake Erie northwest from Ridley on the Delaware, along this great diagonal from the southeast of our State to the extreme northwest, passing through some of the most densely settled areas in the whole Commonwealth in Delaware, Chester, Lancaster, Lebanon and Dauphin Counties and then on through Snyder, Center, Elk, Forest, Warren and into Erie, again no incorporated community would be encountered in Appalachian Trail, and stretches from that 250 mile diagonal.

These facts are mere curiosities of geography, perhaps, but serve to illustrate some of the possibilities for outdoor adventure and exploration that remain in such a long settled state as our own.

That pathway along the rides of Pennsylvania which is known as the the Delaware Water Gap on into the Blue Mountains of Maryland, is only one of many scenic pathways which may be taken by Pennsylvanians in search of healthy and rugged outdoor recreation in a year of war, when economy of gasoline and rubber has to be one of our first considerations in planning our autumn holidays.
